Research question
Can and if so, how and why, mentoring principals assist in the career start?

Mentoring

"Mentoring is a time-stable dyadic relationship between an experienced mentor and his less experienced mentee, characterized by mutual trust and benevolence. Their goal is to promote learning and development as well as the advancement of mentee" (Ziegler 2009, 11).

Missing for our project:
- relationship between mentoring and coaching / supervision / further education
- Question about learning and development of the mentor
Situation principalship in the canton of Zurich

Professionalization as central topic
from teacher with administrative tasks to a own profession

Principal in public schools since 10-20 years:
- Finding of the own role
- Organizational development (Dalin 1997)
- Learning Schools (Schratz & Steiner-Löffler 1998)
- Leadership for learning (MacBeath & Dempster 2009)
- Leadership as a distributed perspective (Spillane 2006)
- Teacher Leadership (York-Barr & Duke 2004)

Duality between reproduction and transformation

The chance to benefit from the knowledge of advanced principals is in the same time a risk of reproducing the old understanding of the profession

Mentoring as a part of a supporting system for the professionalization of principals

Qualification programs, trainings, coaching, inter- or supervision, further education, … and mentoring.
Benefits of mentoring

concrete questions from the workplace

“At the beginning you are on fire. And has to react quickly everywhere, has little time to think about, where actually belongs which topic and how I want to tackle this fundamentally” (Mentee 5)

Benefits of mentoring

“But I think I came with very concrete things. Or? And that's what helped me in my everyday life. Because there are so many things to choose, you have to plan. They come. Very much unpredictable” (Mentee 4)
"Yes, not only because of this, but also because I know then I can ask someone who is independent or, because whenever I ask someone [in my school] I show that I still have uncertainties and that was for me already important somehow or is important to me that I still have somebody in the background, which I can then also ask for it" (Mentee 2)
